University of Oregon - Email Communication

The standard format for your University of Oregon email address is:

username@uoregon.edu

All services at the University of Oregon use the same email address to communicate with you. This includes services such as Blackboard that are used for this class. If you wish to receive email messages at a different email address than the one assigned by the University of Oregon, you may do so by forwarding your email to the account that you use.

To forward your email messages to another location, you must visit the IT Email Account Management site:

http://it.uoregon.edu/help/email/manage.shtml

I will be sending all email communication for the class to the email address listed in Blackboard. If you set your email to forward, you will receive all communication at your new email address location. If you decide to drop this course in the future, you will no longer receive email from this course at the forwarded location, but you will continue to have email messages, from other courses and university services, that are sent to your University of Oregon email account forwarded.
